Edward R. Murrow

as we see it

Our cover personality this week, Edward R. Murrow, has been termed television's "most controversial" figure. He has also been labeled "champion of free speech," "misguided liberal" and several other things—some complimentary, some not.

We are not concerned with labels, which are all too easy to coin but impossible to define to more than one person's satisfaction. We are, however, concerned with the level of television programing.

Whenever television deals with subject matter slightly more involved than custard pie-throwing, comedy-drama or straight news reporting, there is a tendency to sugar-coat, to find ways of presenting material in two-syllable words, amply illustrated. One gains the impression from such programs that the producer said to himself: "I understand this stuff, but the average viewer is much less intelligent than I am. So if I want to keep my audience at all, I'd better reduce it to kindergarten level."

Ed Murrow seems to operate on a different premise. His two TV offerings, See It Now and Person to Person, give the viewer credit for having some brains of his own. Murrow talks to his audience, not down to it. He does not apologize for presenting, say, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith to discuss Russian politics and living conditions. He did not attempt to translate into simple concepts Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer's rather scholarly Atomic Age concept. Murrow's programs don't do the thinking for the audience—they make the audience think.

For respecting his viewers; for bringing them informative shows, Ed Murrow deserves his high place among the important figures in television.

This is Murrow...

'Everyone Is A Prisoner Of His Own Experiences'

Ed Murrow, whose slow, pedantic voice is as familiar to Americans as that of the President of the United States, has, after 19 years of broadcasting, finally become a controversial figure. Last March, Murrow raised his voice in protest against the investigative methods used by Sen. Joseph McCarthy. TV's top newsman immediately found himself labeled a communist by the McCarthyites and the greatest champion of freedom since Patrick Henry by anti-McCarthyites.

Despite the hullabaloo, Murrow is neither of these, although he certainly is on the side of freedom. He doesn't believe TV is a pulpit from which to preach his own "prejudices"—a word he uses freely. "If we snuck our own ideas in," he says, "it would be an abuse of a monopolized opportunity."

In his small, smoke-filled, book-lined CBS office, the lanky newsman described his stand and his "prejudices" and explained his constant use of the term. "Everyone is a prisoner of his own experiences," he says. "No one can eliminate prejudices—just recognize them."

Ed headed CBS radio in Europe during World War II. In 1938, when the Nazis marched into Austria (the whole staff then consisted of Murrow and William Shirer), Ed began his broadcasting career "sort of in desperation and without authorization." Of this experience, he says, "I saw the Anschluss at Vienna. I saw the Austrians and Czechs lose their freedom. I saw terror and fear so strong that when I saw the McCarthy tactics, I felt obliged to speak my piece. But I labeled it as clearly as I knew how."

He went on to say, "Any reputation I may have for impartiality, I stand or fall on. To use the loud speaker as an instrument to reflect or regurgitate my own convictions or prejudices is an abuse of our privileges of the press. We will do what our judgment tells us is of interest."

No one—CBS, sponsor Aluminum Company of America or the Republican Party—told Ed what to do about McCarthy. This was a conscience piece. Ed says, "I have a wonderful arrangement with my sponsor. They make aluminum and I make film. I have no contract with CBS. I know nothing about ratings. I do the best job I know how. If I got involved in ratings I might be tempted to 'hot up' the copy. And I never want to do that."

Whether Murrow was right or not depends largely on the side of the political fence from which you view him. But Murrow believes what Will Rogers called "the big, normal majority," or what the late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone once referred to as "the long, sober, second look of the American people" will eventually find the truth. "We're not a people to be terrorized into silence," Murrow says.

What Murrow tries hardest to get listeners to understand is that "They are not to think they're thinking when they are only rearranging their prejudices. The basic obligation of anybody of the press is not to say, 'This is what I think,' but 'These are the basic facts which led me to this conclusion.' If their conclusion is different from yours, that's okay, too," he added.

Ed grew up on farms and in logging camps in the West, where his father worked. Last year, for See It Now, Murrow and crew visited a logging camp. Ed watched as a lumberjack lined up his apparatus, trying to maneuver a particularly heavy log. Murrow suggested, "Why don't you tight-line it?" He was ignored. After awhile, he yelled, "Whistle them down, you dope, you'll break all the rigging."

After that, he was given the respect due one of the boys, instead of a visiting college professor from the East—a status many people erroneously attribute to him. As a matter of fact, his education is quite unspectacular. He was graduated from the

He Began 'In Desperation'

Washington State College, class of 1930, with "an appetite to study law, but not the money."

His slow, studied manner of speaking once prompted CBS speech consultant W. Cabell Greet to comment, "He sounds like an unfrocked bishop." But it wasn't always this way. Ed says that between 1933 and 1935 he spent a lot of time with a professor who had been flung out of Germany. "As the professor's speech improved, my rate of speaking slowed down."

With a touch of pride, he points out that he spent nine years in England as European director of CBS radio and "consciously did not develop an English accent." Off camera, he likes to sprinkle his speech with colloquialisms. His favorite word is ain't.

He considers himself an outdoorsman and says, "I get more satisfaction out of understanding the nomenclature of a logging operation than writing a piece on Western European defense." He plays golf and hunts and is teaching his son, Casey, 9, to shoot on his farm in Dutchess County, New York.

Although Murrow, at 46, is on a first-name basis with many of the top-ranking brass and statesmen of the world, he doesn't like being top brass himself. He calls his brief tenure as a CBS executive a "sentence." He dislikes budgets, meetings and the occasional necessity of firing someone. "Who am I to play God?" he asks. "The person you have to fire is usually someone who just made a down payment on a new house or whose wife just had a baby. I happen to come from working-class people and that's where I like to be. When the story of labor is involved, I always have to go around to the other side of the desk. It's the same with British policy. You can't live with a people for nine years and not develop a fondness for them. That's what I mean when I say you can't eliminate prejudices. You can only recognize them."

'It's that program called Person to Person. A lot of people and a television camera are in the living room!'

His visits, via Person to Person, to the homes of the great, the near-great or the well-known have revealed that Murrow owns an enormous curiosity. He believes the real genesis of this show is that even the most sophisticated person can't resist looking into open windows. "So we decided to show unordinary people doing ordinary things. The show is dramatic only because people are dramatic."

For a Person to Person visit, a crew of 15 moves in to set up TV connections. About 100 people work on this show. This includes linemen, artists, travel department employes, editors, publicity writers, engineers, secretaries, typists, photographers. Co-producer Jesse Zousmer explained it: "A man of his stature can't take chances or say, 'Well, if the line breaks down, I'll kid around.'"

Murrow feels that moving his crew into a home is akin to an invasion. "I always act like a guest in the house. I wouldn't dream of throwing anyone a curved question."

According to Zousmer, many viewers "bawl us out for not going into the deep, heavy stuff," but the staff agrees it would be unfair to ask people to perform professionally. "We got

Ed goes visiting: he has friends in both the Republican and the Democratic Parties.

Jayne and Audrey Meadows to sing 'Jesus Loves Me' in Chinese," Zousmer says. (The girls lived in China as children.) "And Paddy De Marco to sing 'All of Me.' But if we asked Lily Pons to sing an opera, we'd be obligated to pay her for one."

Zousmer explained that Ed constantly reaches for contrast on this show. When they visited Arthur Godfrey on his Virginia farm, they achieved contrast by following with a visit to a young, unknown actor, Bill McCutcheon. Bill earns approximately $4000 a year, has a new car, wife, baby, tiny apartment and is as happy as any man ever was.

If Ed can't visit the home of the person to be interviewed prior to the telecast, a photographer is sent out to get a complete picture layout. Despite the hectic schedule of preparing for five 15-minute radio shows and two half-hour TV shows a week, Ed will go several hundred miles for an interview. If the distance is too great for him to take the time for traveling, Ed sends one of his co-producers —Zousmer, John Aaron or John Horn.

"Keep 'em guessing," is Ed's theory about this show. And, so far, he has unpredictably combined such pairs as Martha Raye and Mohammed Ali; Perle Mesta and Bert Lahr; Archbishop Cushing and Lilly Dache.

Ed's greatest lament is that he has to cut too much of the material on See It Now. His headline-making interview with atomic physicist Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer was pared down from two-and-a-half hours of film. Murrow and crew were three days and three nights at Remembrance Rock with Carl Sandburg, and wound up with six hours of film. "He is the most remarkable man alive. At 76, he has total recall. He's as close to Lincoln as you'll ever get—and we had to cut his film to 26 minutes."

In Ed's office is a picture of Sandburg standing near the Lincoln Memorial. It is inscribed, "To Ed—reporter, historian, inquirer, actor, ponderer, seeker." If Ed ever thinks of himself as any of these things, it is as a reporter. And at that, it's a nebulous thought. "A reporter is always concerned with tomorrow," he says. "There's nothing tangible of yesterday. All I can say I've done is agitate the air 10 or 15 minutes and then boom!—it's gone."

Zousmer says, "Sure, maybe that's all he does. But one thing about Ed . . . whatever he does, he does with integrity. He ain't going to lie to you. He doesn't need money. He's a success. He has a happy home life. He hunts, travels, shoots. If he wants to go to Korea, he goes. If he wants to talk about Eisenhower or McCarthy, he talks. And I think he's been right more often than not."—Kathy Pedell

Colorful 'Widow'

Omnibus, which never does things by halves, has produced "The Merry Widow" by thirds—so far as color goes. A single primary color was used in the backdrop of each of the three acts, with subordinate tones for the sets and the costumes. In this experiment, color added much to the show but did not dominate it, as sometimes happens. Here's how the plan worked out.

A cool blue ▲ and then a soft yellow ► enhance the costumes of Patrice Munsel.

Warm red for hot cancan: gay backdrop supports but doesn't overwhelm dance scene.

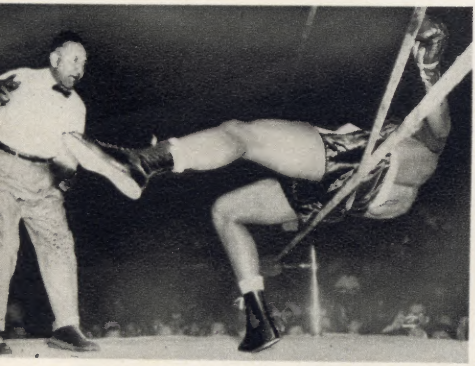
What TV's Done To Boxing

Shouldn't Happen To A Dog

Along that little stretch of Manhattan asphalt known rather oddly as Jacobs Beach, the wailing of the fight mob is horrible to hear.

TV, goes the groan, is debauching the grand old science of self defense.

In the old days, say the sons of Jacobs Beach, the ring was full of classy boxers, men like Jim Corbett and Gene Tunney and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who used to bowl over the muscle-bound sluggers one-two-three.



Hurricane Jackson, becalmed by Valdes.

Today? Fighters, they claim, aren't fighters at all. They mug, posture, strut, telegraph their punches and dance before the cameras.

The boys have another complaint. Fighters today, they snort, don't even want to be fighters. They want to be TV actors—like Rocky Graziano.

"In the dressing room," says one of the mob, "I see them monkeys every night, making faces in the mirror.

"If I'd a got a gun," he adds, "I'd shoot them all."

"Another thing," says a second savant (a man whose opinions have been tolerated, if not respected, on Jacobs Beach for years). "You take a fighter today, when he wins a fight on TV, instead of just saying, 'Hello, Ma!' into the mike, he's got to make a speech."

They tell a story about a pug—let's call him Joe—who went out to fight a champ.

The fight lasted two rounds, Joe all the time dancing around in front of the camera, grimacing like a gargoyle. Then the champ nailed Joe and Joe went down with all the aplomb of a stricken water buffalo. The camera played on his quivering carcass as the referee counted him out.

In the dressing room after the fight, Joe smiled through disheveled features. "I know he stiffened me," he said happily. "But I went down with my good profile up!"

Guys like Joe get very little sympathy along Jacobs Beach, where the philosophers hold that TV has ruined even the announcers. Gone are the bluff, hearty, whisky-voiced spielers who used to gab and gab and gab. They've been replaced by a close-mouthed, noncommittal crew.

But let us return to the gladiators.

A typical cauliflower in TV's orchard was a heavyweight named Hurricane Jackson. Until pickled by another heavyweight, Jackson seemed the perfect picture of a man imitating a tiger—on TV. As a boxer he couldn't nail King Farouk in a track suit, but as an actor he had a filecaseful of emotions. In the ring, he registered horror, righteous indignation, shocking disbelief—and used a windmill style like that of an elderly lady flagging a bus with an umbrella.

Jackson flattened an assortment of paunchy antagonists early last year, building a spectacular, if gossamer, reputation. TV fans loved him—until he was creamed by Nino Valdes, a large side of West Indian beef.

Today the old Hurricane, reduced to a zephyr, is having his troubles attempting a comeback. Nowadays fighters seem to have their troubles regaining the heights, once they've been defrocked before 10,000,000 viewers.

In some ways Chuck Davey was an early Hurricane. Davey, a workaday welterweight operating out of Detroit, entranced TV fans because he was a boxer with a college education. In short, he was unusual.

But Davey didn't do so well with Goliath. Matched with Kid Gavilan, then the welterweight titleholder, Davey was dumped with dispatch.

Tommy Collins, a Boston lightweight, had all the pugilistic skill of Ralph Waldo Emerson. Collins' left was weak. So was his right. His footwork wasn't very good either. But the faces he made endeared him to millions.

In his fight with Jimmy Carter, the lightweight champion, Collins wore an expression which would have terrified the Bride of Frankenstein—but he absorbed one of the most spectacular beatings in the history of legalized mayhem.

Collins was a bleeder—and that was his downfall. With millions of women converted to the ranks of fight fans by TV, bleeders have gone out of favor.

"And that's the trouble with fighting today," a Jacobs Beach habitue has observed. "There's no blood in these new guys."

The fact is, of course, that television hasn't changed fighting—or fighters—at all. Fight fans have always loved sluggers. (Gene Tunney, the master boxer, got poison-pen letters after he whipped hard-punching Jack Dempsey.) And fight fans have always been suckers for color, and mugging it up, and crazy hams clowning all over the ring. A Max Baer, a Tony Galento—or a Hurricane Jackson—will get their cheers any day in the week.

Which goes to show that you can't believe all you hear from the seers of Jacobs Beach.—Frank De Blois

SKIP-A-DAY DIET

Claire Mann: a measure around waist.

By Claire Mann

Miss Mann conducts Glamor Secrets on WABD, New York.

There are hundreds of techniques for keeping slim, alert and glamorous. One of the most "tired" is dieting. Every person becomes a specialist in this field overnight.

After experimenting for the past six years on TV viewers, I have come up with one that's tried-and-true. It was started on my show this year and tested and controlled on 500 viewers for a period of three weeks. There was an average weight loss of 10 pounds per person.

This diet is called the Skip-a-Day diet. The name tells the story. One day you adhere to the diet menu, the next day you eat as much as you wish. This is based on the sound psychological fact that, if you are told you may have a thing, you no longer want it. It is natural to want the forbidden. But if you are given carte blanche every other day, your appetite soon becomes disciplined.

You don't even have to know anything about average weight or height statistics. No counting of calories is needed. It is all done for you. Here is the diet:

Upon arising: juice of half a lemon in a glass of water (optional).

Breakfast: one egg (boiled), one slice of toast, black coffee.

Mid-morning: one orange or half a grapefruit.

Lunch: large fresh-fruit salad or salad of carrots, celery, cabbage, apples, watercress, lettuce and tomato (use lemon juice for dressing); one slice of toast, black coffee or tea.

Mid-afternoon: tomato juice.

Dinner: any broiled lean meat, two cooked vegetables such as peas and carrots or spinach and broccoli (no dressing), tossed green salad, tea or coffee.

Note: no eating before bedtime, eliminate use of salt, no second helpings except on salads or fruits, no substitutions.

It is a good idea to consult a doctor before dieting, to determine how many pounds he wants you to lose.

MIDWEST DATELINE

WMT-TV—Cedar Rapids: At 4:30 every Monday through Friday, the greeting, "Buenos Tardes, Vaqueros," starts another assignment of hard-riding and fast-shooting excitement for the young "deputies" of U.S. Marshal "J." The "deputies" have had palavers on trapping fox, tanning hides, cattle brands, horses, rifles and six-guns and interesting guests of the Marshal all give the Corral Club a heap o' interest.

Most asked question of Marshal "J" is: "Are the guns real?" They are. The Marshal packs a Colt Frontier .45 for upholding law and order and has other guns in his collection which add interest from time to time.

Marshal "J" is a lean young man of 32 years, 6 feet 4 inches, 195 pounds, who hails from Brentwood, Mo. He is married and has two youngsters, Steve and Kathy, who drop into the Marshal's office to help out occasionally. At home, the talk at the J-2 ranch is western but the name Jay Alexander is used more than Marshal "J."

A feature of the Corral Club is a roundup of the "deputies'" birthdays, about 800 a week, complete with pictures to be shown.

WHBF-TV—Rock Island: When the Norman Clayton Show returns Feb. 7, the WHBF choral group will again be heard but with a new name, "The Tenairs." They will sing selections from the musical "Carousel." A modern dance group from Augustana College is also scheduled for the first production of the show at the new time, 6 P.M. Mondays.

Norman Clayton is soloist for the Rock Island YWCA Y-Teens style show "Bustles and Bows" on Feb. 12.

Don Wooten has been selected as director for the Alleman High School annual spring play. This year's production is "Mrs. McThing" by Mary Chase, who wrote "Harvey."

Jim Schrage of Magic Carpet fame has been elected secretary for the Quad-City Playcrafters Little Theater group.

Spring decorating is already under way, with the news room fresh and bright with a coat of apple green paint.

9 BOXING—Eastern Parkway

Chico Vejar, Stamford, Conn., vs. Joey Klein, New York City, welterweights, 10 rounds. Bob Finnegan and Tommy Loughran report from Eastern Parkway Arena, Brooklyn, N.Y.

TV GUIDE RATINGS

	Rating	B	W	L	D	KO's
Vejar	None	62	57	4	1	31
Klein	None	40	24	11	5	4

Vejar, the former Connecticut golden boy, is making his first major start since his discharge from the Army. He is a fast-punching boxer-hitter, who can bounce off the canvas and tear into an opponent. Klein, fresh from a surprise kayo win over South African Champion Gerald Dreyer, is a hard left-hooker. This bout promises to be a crowd-pleaser.

Secrets

Please advise who Mrs. Calabash is that Jimmy Durante always says "Goodnight" to.—B. Rigdon, Galena, Ill. (Sorry, I can't help you, but Jimmy manages to keep this a secret. —ED.)

More Life for Father

I enjoy TV GUIDE very much though I am only 11½ years old. I thought I ought to put my three cents in. I want to know why Channel 4 keeps on such silly shows. I sure am mad about taking off Life with Father.—Penelope Sward, Conesville, Ia. (Due to popular demand, CBS is still carrying Life with Father, Tuesday, 7 P.M.—ED.)

Going Up!

What is wrong with channel 4? It has been impossible to get this station for over a week. It's not me but many, many other people are having the same trouble. So we would like to know if this is going to continue or what. Cannot get anything but lines and snow, not even sound. — Marie Thomas, Rock Falls, Ill. (The interference was due to the fact that WHBF-TV had been adding a 100-foot antenna in order to increase their power. Reception, now, should be many times better than in the past. —ED.)

Keep Wishing

I would like very much to see the program Life Begins at 80, but we are unable to get channel 7. Is there any chance of getting it on 2 or 6? —Mrs. John T. Shanakan, Dubuque, Ia. (There is a chance of 6 carrying the show but up to this time we have no record of it on their schedules. Please watch TV GUIDE as the program may be carried in the future. —ED.)

Andrews	None	44	32	10	2	4

This is a return match. In their last bout two weeks ago in Norfolk, Va., Giardello caught fire in the closing rounds to cop the decision. Giardello looked slow and rusty after a long layoff and his timing was faulty. Andrews, who forced the fighting all the way, lacked the punching power to take advantage of his opponent's lapses. If Giardello's timing comes back to him in this bout Andrews will be hard-pressed to last the limit.

6 7 39 BOXING

Paul Andrews, Buffalo, N.Y., vs. Harold Johnson, Philadelphia, light-heavyweights, 10 rounds. Jimmy Powers reports from Madison Square Garden, New York City.

TV GUIDE RATINGS

	Rating	B	W	L	D	KO's
Andrews	2	33	29	4	0	17
Johnson	3	55	48	7	0	22

This is a return bout for these top-rated light-heavyweights. In his last bout, Andrews belted out "Boardwalk Billy" Smith. Smith holds a kayo win over Harold Johnson. Andrews, who has been improving with each bout, lost a decision to Johnson, but Johnson had to get off the floor to win. Both boys can hit, and with a title shot at stake, they'll be tossing dynamite from the opening bell.

V is for Voluptua

(And For Vampira, Too)

KABC-TV, Los Angeles, has put the "V" into TV with both Vampira (right), (g)hostess of a weekly horror movie, and now Voluptua (above), who lolls over a weekly romantic film of considerable vintage. Voluptua actually is Gloria Pall, whose dulcet tones have a decided Brooklyn flavor. But nobody listens to Voluptua. They only look.

KNOCK AT ANY DOOR

BRITISH WOMAN SEEKS FEMININE VIEWS ON TV

When the British Broadcasting Corp. decided, in Oct., 1953, to establish a new post—"editor of women's television programmes"—it chose for the assignment a tall, brisk, blue-eyed woman who didn't even own a TV set.

With no precedent to guide her, Doreen Stephens (Mrs. J. Arthur Gorsky) decided to learn about women's programs at the grass-roots level —from the women who watch them. She made a three months' tour of Great Britain, devoting much of her time to rapping on strange doors.

◀ Miss Stephens, Norman Hartnell talk gowns.

One thing she learned promptly was that there was plenty of tea in TV.

Her opening gambit—"I see from the aerial on your roof that you are a viewer, so I have come to ask what you personally would like on TV"—usually brought an invitation to share a cup of tea.

A dozen cups was a frequent daily quota, for, Miss Stephens observes, "Tea puts a person in a chatty mood."

Sometimes her efforts were wasted. On one occasion, calling at a house that proudly displayed a TV antenna, she discovered there was no TV set inside. British viewers require a license, and in several cases she was suspected of being a license "snooper" and had doors angrily slammed in her face. She listened frequently to "irrelevant tirades."

But as a result of her prodigious knocking on doors and imbibing of tea, many changes have occurred in B.B.C. programming for women.

Fashion telecasts had been devoted mainly, she found, to items "far beyond the means of ordinary people." Announcing that her TV policy was "to cater for everybody," she ordered fashion shows with arbitrary budget ceilings, in one instance specifying a top of £10 (approximately $28).

Medic's clinical details were far surpassed in a series chronicling a real-life maternity case. When one interview between the mother-to-be and an obstetrician caused uncertainty, Miss Stephens ruled: "Either we treat the subject in an adult fashion, or defeat its purpose. The doctor must speak as he would to a patient in the privacy of his consulting room. I accept full responsibility."

To encourage use of electrical appliances, she arranged for a housewife to try a refrigerator for a month and then report to viewers. Improperly instructed on how to use the appliance, the woman returned with decidedly unfavorable opinions. Miss Stephens insisted she go on the air with her honest—if embarrassing—reactions.

So that animal lovers won't be offended, she has banned talk of fur values when pictures of living animals appear on the screen.

Because her house-to-house survey indicated many women viewers found time heavy on their hands, she instituted a how-to-paint art program. Other programs seek to improve personal appearance, home decoration and the notorious British cooking.

She sums up her programming philosophy in a single sentence. "Our women's television," she says, "is intended to stimulate women to think and act for their betterment."

Berle Directs Berle

BIT PLAYER IMPERSONATES UNCLE MILTIE AT REHEARSALS

If you hear Milton Berle talking to himself, don't be alarmed. He is just telling Milton and everyone else within earshot how to act, how to dance, how fast to play the music and where to place the television cameras. For it's an ill-kept secret that Berle personally supervises every facet of his show—hot and cold.

Obviously, he can't appear with the other performers if he is directing from the sidelines. That's why he uses a full-time stand-in, Jack Collins, who substitutes for Milton until the final dress rehearsal on the day of the telecast. But Collins is not fated always to blush unseen. Sometimes he gets a minor role in the actual show.

Back to camera (it couldn't happen on the air), Berle directs Fred Clark, stand-in Collins and Nancy Walker.

On the next page, ▶ he surveys results.

Berle goes over the lines once more with Clark, Mrs. Berg, while Jack Collins chimes in with Berle's role. Collins even smokes a cigar a la Miltie. . . . And then the star retires (below) to watch the rehearsal on a studio monitor and ponder improvements.

Liberace Plans Slower TV Pace; Gale Storm Wins An Award, But—

HOLLYWOOD . . . Lee, the Smiling Liberace, called to say, "I'm returning to normal. I hated to slow down to a crawl, but it's wonderful they found out about my heart when they did. From now on I'll shoot two TV shows in three days every two weeks. And I'm arranging it so I can be through at 6 in the evening."

■ Gale Storm phoned after she had won an award as "Most Glamorous Businesswoman of the Year," to say, "I'll always treasure this—especially in the morning when I have my hair in curlers and cold cream on my face and am asking my husband for lunch money, because I can't add."

■ Gene Autry, is putting together a new TV baseball series, titled "The Last Out" . . . Gene's trying to teach Gail Davis to perform real Annie Oakley-style stunts—like lighting six matches with six shots while riding at full speed . . . Ralph Edwards received $500 from the Brooklyn Dodgers for that Piney Wood, Miss., school. So don't call those swell fellows "Bums!"

■ Lucille Ball was driving her midget car—gift from Desi—and stopped at a light signal alongside a huge truck. The driver looked down and said, "What else did your daddy give you for your birthday?"

■ Jackie Gleason's eyes popped when he saw the beautiful green grass surrounding the parking lot at CBS Telecenter. "And to think," he snarled, "that I have to work in that phone booth back in New York." He'd give anything—except Art Carney—to live and work in Hollywood . . . Someone sent George Gobel a 1905 calendar, complete with old-fashioned pin-up girls, and wrote, "I thought you'd like one of these, as you can't hardly get them kind any more."

■ Jack Benny called to advise about my TV show: "Use your own judgment. If you listen to everybody, you go nuts. When I started, they said, 'He's floundering; he doesn't have a format.' That's why I get fun out of television. I do a different show every time."

Liebchen's Lady

DECORATIVE JANIS CARTER ENJOYS HER YEN TO DECORATE ON 'FEATHER YOUR NEST'

There's an audience-participation show on NBC each weekday called Feather Your Nest, and it's run for the exclusive benefit of people—not birds, as you might suspect.

In charge of the nest and feathers is Janis Carter, a beauty well-known to the films, who is occasionally assisted—well, sort of—by handsome Miss Liebchen, who wears ermine tails around her neck.

Miss Carter is merely a lovely actress. Miss Liebchen is an actress and a dachshund.

Miss Carter got into the giveaway business after 10 years of Hollywood and some 40 pictures. Miss Liebchen, who's only three, got into TV after meeting her mistress.

Feather Your Nest acquired both girls soon after Janis subbed for Bess Myerson on The Big Payoff. The sponsor was so enthralled with Janis that, when Feather came along, he just swooped her up. This is a joyful arrangement all around, because Janis, who once planned to be an interior decorator, can use her home furnishing talents on the show.

Before her semi-professional advice was needed for TV (on Feather, a new room is shown completely decorated as often as people win one), friends let her splurge on antiques while decorating their apartments. On occasion, Janis, who can tell a Chippendale from an Adam as well as anyone, is confronted by modern, so she set out to learn about modern furniture, among other things.

In learning, Janis has "found" herself. She says, "In the movies, I've always been cast as the lush woman who broke up the happy home. But on Feather, I can be myself. I write my own material. I chat naturally. I like being a normal human being instead of playing a part."

Preston Foster: for a tugboat captain, he gets around.

WATERFRONT

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

Producers of TV adventure shows must be scraping the bottom of the barrel for new location sites. Now that they've conquered space, delved into various police files and hit the Western range, they've gone down to the sea for Waterfront.

Starring Preston Foster as a tugboat captain who becomes entangled in wild adventures week after week, Waterfront is an entertaining telefilm series. It's not world-shaking, but it has sufficient interest or suspense to keep you watching, once you've tuned in.

The various writers who contribute scripts to Waterfront take full advantage of dramatic license. According to tradition, tugboat captains, including "Tugboat Annie," spend their days escorting the big ocean liners in and out of port. But not Cap'n John Herrick, as played by Foster. He gets involved with saboteurs, escaped convicts, diamond smugglers and other low-type characters that most respectable tugboat captains know about only through TV shows.

Herrick's craft, the Cheryl Ann, operates in the Los Angeles-San Pedro harbor, and authentic waterfront scenes give the program a semi-documentary flavor—at least in the background settings, if not in the stories.

Foster gives a good performance, as do Lois Moran, Willie Best and Douglas Dick. Scripts are written tightly, with few dull spots, and the series reflects careful handling in all phases of production.

Cowboy G-Men

You learn something new every day watching TV. We'd always thought that G-Men comprised a comparatively recent branch of the Government, dating back to the early 1900's. But now we find that there were G-Men operating immediately after the Civil War, and on horseback yet. At least, that's what it says in Cowboy G-Men, telefilm series co-starring Jackie Coogan and Russell Hayden. This injects a new angle into the time-honored Western motif, and the show should please the time-honored Western fans.

The G-Men in the title were Government agents charged with special assignments out in the Wild West in the 1880's. This permits our two heroes to flash G-Men badges before tangling with the various villains in the many brawls, gunslinging duels and chase scenes. And while Coogan and Hayden may not operate precisely as J. Edgar Hoover prescribes, they sure get their men.—R.S.

FINE TUNING

Jackie Gleason to diet on TV show. Jackie expects to take more off than Gypsy Rose Lee.

He'll get smaller and smaller, unless you happen to buy a bigger screen.

Up until now, the only way Jackie could lose 90 pounds was betting on English horses. He's got Milton Berle's sponsor, and now he's going after Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s figure. This is Life—a guy gets an $11,000,000 contract, and then has to stop eating.

Jackie was playing a bus driver and doubling in the role of the bus.

His new system doesn't involve exercise, starvation or surgery. All Jackie has to do to get thinner is take one small pill, and stand farther from the camera. He owns the formula, so, as he gets thinner, his bankroll will get fatter.

When he puts on his money belt, there he is, right back in the same old shape.

Jackie's like the fat fellow who bought the corset. It worked fine, but he couldn't get used to being 6 feet, 8 inches tall.
